Information on the Coast Botween Ustka and Kolobrzeg  THE OF INFO.  ACE ACQUIRED  This is UNEVALUATED  The harbor of Darlovo (Rusgenwalde), and the harbors of Ustka (Stolpmuen and Kolobrzeg (Kolberg), constitute the three small, most secret harbors of the Folish coast. At Ustka, some coal is still loaded on ships, mostly Soviet but Darlowo and Kolobrzeg are entirely closed not only for foreign, but also for ordinary Folish merchant ships.  2. Only fishermen are usually still in a position to report on these harbors, because in all three harbors there are small fishing fleets, the smallest of which is at Ustka. At Kolobrzeg and Parlovo, fishing boat yards have been build or the old on have been repaired; they are intended, however, mostly for the construction and repair of fishing outters.  3. The garrison at Darlovo, west of the harbor, consists of several tank platoons (Panzerzueges), which have their headquarters there. A part of the tank troops are said to be located at Krakow.  4. Neither in the harbor, nor in the town of Darlowo itself, is anything extraordinary being built which could directly serve military purposes. Further south, however, in the direction of Koszalin (Koszalin and Slawno (Schlawe) and along the coast to Kolobrzeg, fortifications are under constituations. These tonispthyripingipally, of all concrete positions for various kinds of artillery, including many for antiaircraft and of underground concrete bunkers.
